COMMENCEMENT WEEK

Opened by Baccalaureate Sermon

The exercises of the 109th commencement were formally opened with the Baccalaureate sermon, which was delivered by Rev. Clark Seelye, '57, president of Smith College. The services were held in connection with the 225th anniversary of the First Reformed church.

Union college was founded by the Rev. Dirck Romeyn, D. D., the seventh pastor of this church. It grew out of the Schenectady academy, which was organized and built by the people of this church in 1785, at the corner of Union and Ferry streets. After ten years of prosperous life and mainly through the influence of Dr. Romeyn, the academy merged into the college, which was chartered in 1795. In 1804, the year of Dr. Romeyn's death, the college was removed to the new edifice now known as the Union school. Union college has educated about 150 ministers of the Reformed Church of America. It was therefore, in every way proper that the commencement of Union college should be closely connected with the First Reformed church.

Long before the service opened people had begun to arrive, and by the time that the ministers, faculty and seniors marched in, clad in their caps and gowns, only the seats reserved for them were left vacant.

Dr. Raymond introduced Dr. Seelye, who said in part:

"I cannot tell you the pleasure it gives me to be once more among the students of the college to which I owe a large part of my training, and to stand once more within the church which was my spiritual guide while I was in college.

"I take my text from St. John, 17 iii—'And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.'

"In this definition Christ does not attempt to explain the primal mystery which life involves. When life is, whence it comes and whither it goes are questions to which science today can give no satisfactory answer. In the last scientific analysis of the primitive life cell there is found only a mingled mass of minute filaments, so marvelously interlaced that it is impossible to discern either a beginning or an end. Two things, however, may be predicted of life which will serve to unfold the meaning of our text. All life must be fed; for all life there is food. The first act of life is the search for food and its first appearance is in a body which it has created out of the food which it has found. No power can make things grow if the inner vital force be wanting, and no life can exist without suitable nourishment. When from any cause food is taken away, or the inner force fails to assimilate it, death ensues.

"The second thing we note is that for all life there is food. Accidental causes may produce temporary famine, but it is now a well established fact that there is no species of life, vegetable or animal, for which there cannot be found in nature appropriate food.

"The life spirit has the same characteristics, although it involves a greater mystery, for spiritual life has a capacity to accept or reject the good it needs, which is nowhere seen in the natural world. But notwithstanding spiritual life is thus radically distinguished from other vital processes by its baffling capacity of self-determination, it corresponds with physical life in the two factors which are essential to its existence and growth. There is the inner mysterious personal force which distinguishes each one of us from every other being in the universe, and there is the unseen force not ourselves, by which our personality must be constantly fed.

"The mind will not grow unless nourished by other minds, and its strength and breadth will be proportional to the quality and quantity of the mental nourishment. Intellectual isolation is intellectual starvation.

"'Knowledge is the food of the soul,' is an old trite saying, and men have always found that unless it is supplied in sufficient quantities to appease the mental hunger, the mind will decay. The thirst for knowledge is the instinctive craving of the intellectual life for that which is essential to its existence.

"In the higher personal qualities of which the heart stands as the symbol, the craving for love must be satisfied with the corresponding love of another heart. The man who has no one to love him, no friendly sympathy, invariably degenerates. However great the learning or the wealth, unless the human heart have the vivifying touch of another's love, it will eventually sicken and die. A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth. In the midst of much goods and full storehouses, his best affections may give up the ghost and leave only a sepulchre.

"To make man what he ought to be, to bring the human spirit to its full stature, he must know the best characteristics of other spirits. But man hungers for one who does not die as men die, who is not ignorant and weak and sinful, as men are, whose love is not exhausted by our demands, nor alienated by our neglect, who has in himself eternal life and is able to give it to us abundantly.

"If this brief span of existence between the cradle and the grave be all there is of spiritual being, and the soul with the body is to vanish into the manifold physical forces around us, then the cry of the sensualist. 'Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die,' will become, at last, the dominant cry. Against this fatal creed the best hearts in every age have uttered an effectual protest.

"In the struggle for existence in the natural world, science tells us that no individual peculiarity, however slight, that tends to the preservation and perfection of life, has ever been neglected. In the struggle for existence in the spiritual world, if that would be under the control of the same Being, should we not expect there would be equal care for the preservation and perfection of spiritual traits? Is not that expectation strengthened by the evidence which nature gives that man is her crowning work, for which the whole creation groaneth and travaileth together in pain until now?

"Just after the publication of Darwin's work on the 'Fertilization of Orchids,' in which he showed that their existence depends on the insects which their color and nectar attract, so that for the structure of every orchid there should be a corresponding insect to fertilize it, some one found in Madagascar an orchid with a nectary eleven inches long, implying, according to the Darwinian theory, that there must be an insect with a tongue of corresponding length. This seemed incredible, and as no such insect had ever been found with a tongue of such enormous length, the Darwinian theory was doubted by some critics. Darwin replied to the sceptics, 'the existence of an orchid with a slender nectary eleven inches in length, and with nectar secreted at its tip, is to me most conclusive demonstration of the existence of a moth with a tongue eleven inches in length, even though no such moth is known.' Darwin's faith was finally justified, for a few years later such a moth was found.

"May we not with equal confidence affirm that the existence of a person, with the capacity for eternal life, with the craving for infinite knowledge and love, is as conclusive evidence that there is an ever-living God, who can satisfy this need, so that the human soul may realize its highest possibilities of being? If this be not so, if the human soul has no one to satisfy its deepest vital need, then it is at variance with all we know of life elsewhere. In the emphatic words of John Fiske, 'All the analogies of nature shout against the assumption of such a breach of continuity between the evolution of man and all previous evolution.' So far as we can determine, there is no such breach. A God has been revealed who answers every need of the human spirit. Men have lived only as they have known Him, and their knowledge has ever been the measure of their vitality.

"Jesus Christ, by his revelation of the eternal righteous God and Father satisfies the otherwise inappeasable hunger and thirst of the human soul. Wherever he has enabled men to know God better, there has been a more abundant life. His words have brought forth in the family, in the state and in the church the noblest examples of affection, of patriotism and of religion. By the strength and hope which his words have given, men have subdued kingdoms and wrought righteousness and vanquished their spiritual foes. Through this knowledge of God in Jesus Christ they have followed unfalteringly those whom they have loved into the unseen world with the firm conviction that there life is to be enlarged and perfected, and that there the deepest cravings of mind and heart will be satisfied, and every trace of death removed.

Grove Exercises

The Ivy Exercises were held as usual Monday afternoon in the garden. The day had been cloudy and this fact doubtless kept many away but there was nevertheless, a large crowd ranged around the Nott Elm to see the time-honored exercises. The wait for the seniors was enlivened by the excellent music of the orchestra. It was nearly 3:30 o'clock when the Seniors, marching two by two, and led by Grand Marshal A. J. Thomson entered the enclosure, singing their class song. The program, which does not include the "jig," was as follows:

Orchestra; Ivy oration, Morland King, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Ivy poem, Morris T. Raymond, Schenectady, N. Y.; orchestra; Smoking the Pipe of Peace; pipe oration, LeRoy L. Odell, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; orchestra; Planting the Ivy Vine; orchestra.

The Oratoricals

On Monday evening were held the Extemporaneous prize debate and the junior and sophomore prize oratorical contest, in the First Reformed church. The audience was the largest in years.

Dr. Hale presided and introduced the speakers.

The first speaker for the sophomores was Herbert E. Cantwell. His subject was, "The Forms of Charity in Our Times." He was followed by Dudley T. Hill on "The Immigration Peril." The last speaker was Richard S. Dillon, speaking on "The College and the Citizen." First place was awarded to Mr. Dillon and second to Mr. Hill.

For the juniors, George W. Hitt was the first speaker, taking as his subject, "The Public Life of Daniel Webster." Phillip L. Classen then spoke on "The Negro and the Franchise." Charles N. Waldron had as his subject, "Country Life." Mr. Classen won with Mr. Waldron taking second prize.

For the Extemporaneous speaking, "The Monroe Doctrine and Its Recent Applications," had been assigned as the general topic. The special subject chosen was, "President Roosevelt's Application of the Monroe Doctrine." A short time was given for preparation when the following men spoke: Thomas M. Holmes, '05; Byron W. Reed, '06; Leon R. Lewis, '06, and Joseph T. Wright, '07. All agreed with Roosevelt's application excepting Mr. Reed, to whom the prize was given.

The judges for all three contests were Daniel N. Lockwood, '65, Buffalo, chairman; Francis J. Hoag, '65, Toledo, O., and Prof. S. B. Howe, '62, of this city.

Phi Beta Kappa

At 9 a. m., on Tuesday the Phi Beta Kappa met and transacted routine business, Professor Ashmore being in the chair. No new members were elected.

Sigma Xi

At the same time as above, the Sigma Xi met, with President Stoller in the chair. Eight new members have been elected this year: Professors Ellery and Creighton, from the faculty; L. K. Evans, Wales, graduate student in electrical engineering; Eric T. King, '05, Roseband, and Karl F. West, '05, Lake George, from the general engineering course; James H. Cunningham, '05, and Moreland King, '05, Brooklyn, from the electrical engineering course, and Frank I. Losee, '05, Fergusonville, from the Latin scientific course.

Board of Governors

The board of governors of the University met at 9:30 a. m., Tuesday, in Washburn Hall, and transacted general business, Simon W. Rosendale presiding. A committee consisting of the deans of the different departments of the University was appointed to report at the regular meeting of the board in October on general conditions and specific matters relative to the University.

Board of Trustees

The annual meeting of the board of trustees of the college was held at 10 a. m., Tuesday. Some slight changes were made in the curriculum and in the granting of degrees. Frederic W. Cameron, '81, was elected unanimously to succeed himself as trustee.

Alumni Officers

At the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association Tuesday, the following officers were elected for the year: President, John E. Ashe, '66; vice-president, J. Newton Fiero, '67; secretary, Rev. W. N. P. Dailey, '84; treasurer, Marvin H. Strong, '95; executive committee, James Heatley, '79; Charles C. Lester, '70; Daniel N. Lockwood, '65; N. V. V. Franchot, '75, E. S. Barney, '88.

Alumni Dinner

At 1:30 p. m., Tuesday the Alumni dinner was served by the ladies of Schenectady. The large tent was partially dismantled by the sudden storm, putting out of business the table of the ladies of the First Reformed church, but the damage was repaired. Nearly 300 guests sat down to the excellent repast. The students acted as waiters.

Class Day Exercises

At four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, much to their own enjoyment and to that of a large number gathered in the First Reformed Church, the class of 1905 indulged in their Class Day exercises.

The orchestra had discoursed light music for some time when President Frank I. Losee arose from his chair on on the platform and made his farewell address to the class. Mr. Losee after reciting the virtues and abilities of the glorious class, referred to some of the pleasures the members of its departments were having. The care and work-free days of the Classical man were no more, he said; the Bachelor of Science faced a lonely road, uncheered by the familiar sight of the busy Harmatococcus and Paramoecium; The Ph. B. would miss the ever ready help of his faithful steed; the C. E. the daily anecdotes of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; and the E. E. must pay a long farewell to "incidental" visits to the Assistant Treasurer.

The Class Historian, James R. Stevens, then told of the doings of the class in the four years of its existence, its scraps with upper and under classes, its struggles with "financial reform," the survival of the fittest from its original membership and the friendship with which all experiences had cemented their hearts.

Clarence S. Arms delivered the class oration, the title of which was "The Professional School and the College." After speaking on the development of both institutions he brought out clearly the former's tendencies toward narrow training and compared them with those of the latter toward high ideals of honesty and all that makes for broad citizenship. C. Malcolm McGregor, class prophet, told the future of the members of the class as it was revealed to him by a spirit living in the year 1925. The members of the class were at that time filling various roles in the world, a philanthropist, a superintendent of the General Electric Co., a circus barker and a college president being among them. Some of the members of the class were having varied experiences in matrimony.

The class poet, Louis C. Hart, recited in lyrics the progress of the Class of 1905 from its freshman year to the present and closed with some verses of farewell to its members.

The exercises were concluded by the singing of the class song.

The Glee Club Concert

In spite of the fact that eleven of the members of the Musical Association were missing, the Commencement Concert at the Van Curler, went off without a hitch. The last rehearsals were, as is usually the case, very poor, but in the emergency the men outdid themselves and seemed capable of "remembering" words they never had learned. The only effort at really artistic work was Bell's solo with cello obligato by Kline, '08, and it merited the warm reception given it. "The Bull Frog Song" and "O'Hooligan" were loudly applauded.

Much credit for the success of the evening is due to the large and interested audience, which encored almost everything and entered heartily into the spirit of the occasion. Snow '08, was "the man for the emergency," stepping into the quartette two days before the concert, taking the place of Richardson '07, who was called home; and carrying through his part in faultless fashion. The leader of the clubs may congratulate himself on the performance of his men in both clubs; the concert has been spoken of as "the best in years."

The program was as follows:

PART I.

"Come Now to the Campus".....Franklin, '83
Glee Club.

"A Bit of Blarney".....Helf
Instrumental Club.

"The Vicar of Bray".....Vogrich

College Notes

Tuesday evening, Dr. Raymond entertained at dinner fourteen members of his class, 1875. From these, $3,500 was raised to aid the scientific work of the college. It is expected that the remainder of the class can bring the amount up to $5,000.

* * * *

On the same evening, the members of the class of 1895, at their re-union, raised the sum of $2,250, to endow a scholarship.

* * * *

* * * *

The Delta Upsilon fraternity has recently purchased and moved into a new house at 103 Nott Terrace.

* * * *

The new table lights have been placed in the library. There are two standards, of two lights each, one each of the long tables, one standard on the short tables, and one standard of four lights on the round center table.

The Alumni Committee of Harvard University which has promised to turn over a birthday present of $2,500,000 to its Alma Mater at the next June commencement, has announced that it expects to receive the larger part of that sum from J. Pierpont Morgan.

One more class has been added to the long list of Union's alumni. Twenty-nine men of 1905 have received their diplomas and know no longer the joys and sorrows of undergraduate days. It is with regret that we who are left behind see them go, for to all it means the loss of many true and tried friends.

Dropping the responsibilities of students, the men of 1905 have assumed a responsibility which seems to us as great if not greater. The roll of Union's alumni is long, and as illustrious as it is long. Every man in leaving the college is put on his mettle that he may lessen in no way its fame. It is this responsibility that is now taken up by 1905. Knowing the men of the class as we do, we need have no fear that they will not acquit themselves well.

Farewell men of 1905, you have done well in college, your training school. May the same success attend you in the life upon which you are entering.

As we pause to look back over the college year which has just now drawn to a close, we will surely be pardoned the glow of satisfaction which that look causes us. In all branches has there been a wholesome revival. That line of college activities to which the mind of the college man seems naturally to turn first is athletics. Our record here certainly brings to mind the tales which we hear so often of a former poweress. In football, wonders were accomplished with what seemed at first a very ordinary bunch of men. The season was most successful from all points of view. The same may be said of the baseball team, the team starting slowly but winding up the season in fine style. The track team won for the first time in years. With all of these successes, there has been a good, healthy increase of college spirit, and which we are sure is still on the upward path.

All of this is pleasant to contemplate, but pleasanter still are the material gains of the college. The year opened with the largest freshman class in years. The working ability of the different departments has been improved. The grounds and buildings have also come under the influence, the gymnasium, in particular, having received some sadly needed repairs. And on top of all this come the reports of Commencement week, including the new buildings, the remodeling of the laboratories, and the generous benefactions of the classes of '75 and '95. Truly, this has been a year pleasant to look upon for those who love "Old Union."

Since the last "Concordy" two team elections have been held. After the last game, the baseball team met and unanimously elected Lorenzo N. Rider, '06, captain for next year. The election meets with the hearty approval of all. "Len" has played first base for three years, always standing high in fielding, and this year leading the team in batting. With all the old men back, and with the active assistance of this year's successful captain, Capt. Rider should turn out a winning team next year.

Shortly after the Rochester meet, Charles N. Waldron, '06, was elected captain of the track team for next year. Waldron made the team in his freshman year and has been a steady and reliable performer since, at all times having been credited with a large share of the points made by his team. The selection is as popular as that of the baseball team. The prospects here are also bright for next year. All of this year's team will return with the exception of Capt. Raymond and Becker. The hardest work will be to develop a new hurdler.

Sigma Delta Sigma, recently organized at the University of Wisconsin, takes its members from both the men and women students. Its career will be watched with considerable interest by the college world.

COMMENCEMENT

Degrees and Prizes Awarded

The one hundred and ninth annual commencement of Union college was formally brought to a close Wednesday morning by the graduating exercises, which were held in the First Reformed church, prettily decorated for the occasion, and crowded to the doors with friends of the graduates and of the college. On the platform were seated the board of trustees and the faculty, while the seniors, in caps and gowns, occupied the forward portion of the body of the church.

The exercises were opened by music, after which came the singing of the 117th Psalm, followed by the opening prayer.

Ernest Judson Ellenwood of Dannemora was excused from delivering his oration, which was entitled "A Plea for Russia."

The other orations were as follows: Geo. M. Elmendorf, "Education and Our Present Progress;" Thomas M. Holmes, "The Basis of Human Progress;" Eric T. King, "The Engineer and the Epoch;" Moreland King, "The Leader;" M. T. Raymond, "American Principles and Present Tendencies." The Valedictory was delivered by Frank I. Losee, whose subject was, "The Internal Condition of Russia." In conclusion he addressed a farewell to the seniors, trustees, faculty, President Raymond, and undergraduates.

The following were the theses in Engineering, the authors, however, being excused from delivering them on the commencement stage.

1.—"A Mathematical and Experimental Investigation of the Mercury Arc Rectifier on Constant Potential," James Hannah Cunningham.

2, 3.—"An Investigation of the Brush Arc Generator," Frank Thorburn Forester; "A Study of Water Softening Process and a Design for a Plant for the Schenectady Public Water Supply," Neil Cummings Holdredge.

4.—"An Investigation of Ground Water," Eric Ture King.

5.—"An Investigation of the Film Formed at the Aluminium Anode," Moreland King.

6.—"A Water Power Development in Schoharie Creek," Karl Frederick West.

The Honorary Chancellor's address was delivered by the Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, D. D., president of Union Theological Seminary.

Following the Chancellor's address came the conferring of degrees and the awarding of prizes, the following degrees being awarded in course.

Bachelors of Arts—John Francis Bradley, Thomas Earl McQuirk, Frederick Curtis Patton, Morris Thomas Raymond. As of the class of 1904, Samuel Dimock Palmer.

Base Ball

Since the last issue of the Concordiensis, the team has played seven games, winning five. The first was with Rutgers at New Brunswick, May 20. We were beaten by a team which was hardly our equal. The boys had little time for practice on a diamond entirely different from ours. The game was lost through our errors and Rutgers' hits. Score:

| Rutgers ..... | 1       | 1 | 1 | 1 | 2 | 0 | 1 | 3 | x | — 10 12 4 |

Union 7, Mohicans 1.

A second game was played with the Mohican Baseball Club at Island Park on May 26. It was rather tame, Union hitting well, while the Mohicans could get but one hit off Davis, who pitched in fine shape. Score:

|                | R.H.E |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |   |

Union 10, R. P. I. 4.

On the next day, May 27, R. P. I., came over to try conclusions with the Garnet for the second time. They started with a rush and looked dangerous for awhile, hitting Hildreth freely and being aided by slow work in the field. Davis was substituted for Hildreth and all hands settled down, soon drawing away from the Trojans. Score:

Union 13, All-Collegiates 3.

Decoration Day the team easily defeated the local All-Collegiates in a very loosely played game. The game lost interest because of the big lead which the boys obtained in the first few innings. Score:

Union 4, Hamilton 7.

Friday, June 2, the team started on its trip west, playing Hamilton at Clinton that day. An easy victory had been expected because of the former game, but the tables were turned. The boys couldn't hit Havens until it was too late, getting but one safe hit in the first six innings. Hamilton hit when runs were needed. The team had one bad inning, allowing Hamilton to clinch the game with four runs. Hoffman, a new freshman on our team, drove out a pretty two-bagger in the ninth, scoring three runs. Score:

|----------------|----|----|----|
| Hamilton ..... | 1  | 0  | 0  |

Union 8, Rochester 2.

The second game of the Western trip was played at Rochester, June 3, resulting in a clean victory for Union. Davis held Rochester down to five hits while Union scored almost at will. It was a much more decisive defeat than had been administered to the same team a few weeks before. Score:

|                 | R. | H. | E. |
|-----------------|----|----|----|
| Union .....     | 1  | 0  | 2  |
| Rochester ..... | 1  | 0  | 0  |

Union 11, Rutgers 4.

Ample revenge was had when Rutgers came up here last Saturday, June 10. They were beaten easily in a rather cleanly played game. Both sides bunted to good advantage, but Rutgers could not hit safely when hits were needed. The pitcher issued a large number of passes, filling the bases and forcing in a runner in the eighth, when five runs were scored on two hits. Rider, Hagar and Diver hit well, the first two scoring seven runs between them.

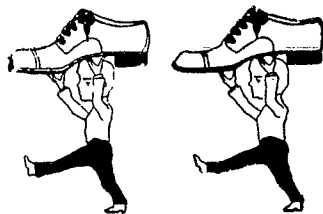

Immediately after the game, L. N. Rider, '06 was elected captain for next year.

Faculty Changes

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees, the resignation of Dr. T. W. Wright as professor of mathematics was accepted and he was made professor emeritus of mathematics. Dr. Ellery was made professor of chemistry, and is to have a laboratory assistant.

Mr. Van Loon and Mr. Cunningham also presented their resignations, which were accepted.

Prof. F. B. Williams has been put in charge, temporarily, of the work in mathematics and applied mechanics. Mr. Garis will be assistant in mathematics.

The trustees also authorized the engagement of an instructor in English, to have charge of composition and public speaking. There will also be an additional instructor in civil engineering.

BUILDERS OF LOCOMOTIVES FOR ALL CLASSES OF SERVICE.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY MEDICAL COLLEGE, New York City

THE course covering four years begins during the first week in October and continues until June. A preliminary training in natural science is of great advantage. All the classes are divided in small sections for recitation, laboratory and clinical bedside instruction. Students are admitted to advance standing after passing the requisite examinations. The successful completion of the first year in any College or University recognized by the Regents of the State of New York as maintaining a satisfactory standard is sufficient to satisfy the requirements for admission which have lately been raised. The annual announcement giving full particulars will be mailed on application.
