After music by the orchestra President Raymond introduced the honorary chancellor, Mr. George B. McClellan, Mayor of New York.

GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN

The subject of the address was "The Profession of Politics," and it was one of exceptional practical worth. Mayor McClellan made a clear distinction between the profession and the trade of politics. He spoke of the need of maintaining a high moral standard and the good that comes of it. The mayor summed up most forcefully in the last paragraph by saying "There are certain essentials to success in politics, without which no man should undertake its profession, and these essentials are four—a sense of honor, common sense, a sense of proportion, and last, but not least, a sense of humor. If you have not these, leave politics alone. Both you and the country will be better off. If you have these essentials, however, and feel the call of the profession, then the whole world is open to you, and there is no office, no matter how high, to which you may not aspire. Furthermore, it is your duty to devote your lives to the service of the state, not so much for your own advancement as for the good of your fellowmen."

All who were in town through commencement week had the opportunity of witnessing a series of remarkable exercises. The baccalaureate sermon and the chancellor's address were both notable productions. We regret exceedingly that they cannot be printed in full. The alumni dinner was largely attended and the greatest enthusiasm was aroused. Too great praise cannot be given to those ladies of Schenectady who labor each year for the success of the affair.

All sons of old Union may well feel proud of the character of honor and truth which she bears.

The class of 1906 has ceased its college career. We are the losers and the loss is not a small one. Unwavering loyalty and faithful spirit have characterized the class since its birth. For the sake of a beloved Alma Mater we most earnestly pray that something of this honor and enthusiasm may be transmitted to a world that ever stands ready to receive those who will do something worth while.

1907 Garnet

The 1907 Garnet appeared on May 29 and at once proved to be a thoroughly admirable achievement. The book is larger than that of last and boasts of no small literary character. Too great credit cannot be given to the Business Manager, who brought the publication of the book to a successful issue in spite of the disastrous fire in Rutland. By his efforts alone the appearance of the book was made possible. The book stands out clearly as a complete and fitting history of the class of 1907.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY MEDICAL COLLEGE, New York City

THE course covering four years begins during the last week in September and continues until June. A preliminary training in natural science is of great advantage.

All the classes are divided in small sections for recitation, laboratory and clinical bedside instruction.

Students are admitted to advanced standing after passing the requisite examinations.

The successful completion of the first year in any College or University recognized by the Regents of the State of New York as maintaining a satisfactory standard is sufficient to satisfy the requirements for admission which have lately been raised.

The annual announcement giving full particulars will be mailed on application.

There is something distinctive about the clothing we sell, that feature which marks it as decidedly different and gives each garment individuality. A few years has wrought wonderful changes in the clothing trade, a change that makes possible buying clothing, ready to wear, excelling in every way the handiwork of the ordinary tailor.

The "K. B." shoulder and coat front is the lasting foundation upon which our clothing is built. Over this foundation is carefully marked by hand the perfect fitting, shape retaining garment we sell.
